

	Ideology of CCTH	Patient-centred approach	Equity in service provision	Equivalence to hospital care
Manager 1	Gen Paeds doesn't need to be in hospital; with right infrastructure CCTH makes sense [p1, 24].	Need to deliver services based on what families need; at the moment focused on what's easier for us QQQ [p16, 467].	For some people a city centre hospital is CTH than a clinic in the community [p620, 21].	Need to instil confidence that they're getting same level of care, but CTH [p2, 33].
Consultant 7	CCTH is a good recommendation; only patients who need specific investigations should attend hospital for outpatients [p1, 7].	Preservation of the institution (hospital), rather than needs of the population they actually serve, seems to be the predominant interest QQ [p3, 69].		Make it clear to patients it's exactly same service in satellite clinic, they are seeing me (same consultant) [page 1, 16].
Executive 5	The more we keep patients out of hospital, the better; don't want patients in hospital if don't need to [p1, 14]. CCTH is part of bigger picture around self care and self management [p11, 350].		If just transfer clinic from hospital to community setting, improve access for some, but reduce it for others QQ [p11, 340].
