

A fluorescence microscopy image showing two cells against a black background. The mammalian cell, on the left, is a large, complex structure with multiple bright, branching filaments. The yeast cell, on the right, is a small, circular, bright spot. A white horizontal scale bar is located in the top right corner.

mammalian cell

yeast