Potential impact of self-perceived prodromal symptoms on the early diagnosis of Parkinson’s disease

Journal of Neurology

Uwe Walter, Sabine Kleinschmidt, Florian Rimmel, Christian Wunderlich, Irene Gemende, Reiner Benecke, Knut Busse

Address for correspondence:

Prof. Dr. Uwe Walter
Department of Neurology
University of Rostock
Gehlsheimer Str. 20
18147 Rostock, Germany
uwe.walter@med.uni-rostock.de

Online Resource 3: Supplementary figure 1
Supplementary figure 1. Number of patients retrospectively reporting one or more (up to nine out of 15) non-motor symptoms perceived in the prodromal phase of PD. Note that only a small minority of patients had perceived five or more prodromal non-motor symptoms.