Discrepant effects of human interferon-gamma on clinical and immunological disease parameters in a novel marmoset model for multiple sclerosis

Journal of Neuromuscular Pharmacology

S. Anwar Jagesar,1,5, Bruno Gran,2, Nicole Heijmans,1, Jan Bauer,3, Jon D Laman,4,5, Bert A. ‘t Hart,1,4,5 and Cris S. Constantinescu2

1Department Immunobiology, Biomedical Primate Research Centre, Rijswijk – The Netherlands, 2Academic Division of Clinical Neurology, University of Nottingham, United Kingdom, 3Department of Neuroimmunoology, Medical University Vienna, Center for Brain Research, Vienna, Austria, 4Department Immunology, Erasmus Medical Center, Rotterdam, The Netherlands, 5ErasMS Center for Translational research into MS, The Netherlands

Address correspondence to:
Prof. dr. Bert A. ‘t Hart
e-mail: hart@bprc.nl

Supplemental Figure 2
IgG and IgM responses of individual monkeys

A

No treatment

IFNγ (day 0-25)

IFNγ(day 56-81)

B

No treatment

IFNγ (day 0-25)

IFNγ(day 56-81)