Supplementary Figure 1. Photographs displaying the rice growing environment of the Bahau river region: i) traveling by boat between villages along the Bahau river, ii) upland rice field along the side of the river; iii) upland rice field during harvest season; iv) lowland rice field being harvested near Long Tebulo; v) freshly harvested rice panicles from a lowland field near Long Alango containing a mixture of different varieties that could be identified by name by the farmers; vi) rice granaries containing harvested and stored grain.