Supplementary Information

Docosahexaenoyl ethanolamide mitigates IgE-mediated allergic reactions by inhibiting mast cell degranulation and regulating allergy-related immune cells

Kosuke Nishi¹,²,³, Yoshiki Kanayama¹, In-Hae Kim¹, Akihiro Nakata¹,⁴, Hisashi Nishiwaki³ & Takuya Sugahara¹,²

¹Department of Bioscience, Graduate School of Agriculture, Ehime University, Matsuyama, Ehime 790-8566, Japan. ²Food and Health Sciences Research Center, Ehime University, Matsuyama, Ehime 790-8566, Japan. ³Research Unit for Skeletal Health and Diseases, Ehime University, Toon, Ehime 791-0295, Japan. ⁴Department of Pathophysiology, Graduate School of Medicine, Ehime University, Toon, Ehime, Japan.

*Correspondence and requests for materials should be addressed to K.N. (email: nishi.kosuke.mx@ehime-u.ac.jp)
Supplementary figure. Uncropped immunoblot used in Fig. 4.