The figure illustrates the true positive rate for different methods as a function of the number of time points with differential expression. The methods compared are BETR, limma, MB-statistic, EBEGE, and EDGE. The graph shows an increasing trend in true positive rate with the number of time points for all methods, with BETR generally having a higher true positive rate than the others.