The graph shows the proportion of trials yielding the true species tree as a function of the number of genes. The lines represent MP-EST (diamonds) and concatenation (squares). As the number of genes increases, the proportion of trials yielding the true species tree also increases for both methods, with MP-EST consistently outperforming concatenation.