Figure A and B show the distribution of relative distances for two different types of data, with significant differences indicated by . Figure C displays box plots comparing the differences between same and different types of data for Type 1&2 and Type 5, with N.S. indicating non-significant differences.