Classical Estimate vs. Bayesian Estimate

The scatter plot shows the relationship between classical estimates and Bayesian estimates. The dashed line represents the 45-degree line, indicating where classical and Bayesian estimates would be equal if they were perfectly aligned. The data points generally follow this line, suggesting a strong correlation between the two methods. However, there are some outliers, indicating differences in specific cases.