Depressive disorders in old people have more of biological causes than depressive disorders at younger ages.

Antidepressive agents are as effective in old people as in middle age persons.

Psychotherapy is as effective in old people as in middle age persons.

Antidepressive agents are effective against anxiety and behavior disorders in people with dementia.

Depressive disorders in old people have more of biological causes than depressive disorders at younger ages.