Seroprevalence rate is shown to increase with age, with a higher rate in the Uphill than the Valley bottom. The data points suggest a gradual increase in seroprevalence rate with age, peaking at around 30 years, after which the rate remains relatively stable.