The bar graph illustrates the percentage survival in relation to birth weight. Birth weight categories are represented from less than 501 grams to less than 1501 grams. The x-axis shows the birth weight categories, while the y-axis represents the percentage survival. The highest percentage survival is observed in the birth weight category of less than 1301 grams, with survival rates peaking in the category of less than 1001 grams.