Individual level

Psychological distress

People with interest in dietary pattern could take healthy diet practice associated with good mental health

Psychological distress could lower one's interest in dietary pattern

Interest in dietary pattern

Feeling of reciprocity is likely to improve distress

Social capital is likely to provide normative pressure to healthy eating behavior by neighbor's social support

Social capital

Reciprocity  Sense of community belonging

Community level