Before: A course on doctor-patient communication is a good idea in general.

After: The course concept “role play” of doctor-patient situations is a good idea in general.

Before: I like that the contents of the course are not taught only in a lecture format.

After: I like that the contents of the course were not taught only in a lecture format.

Before: I would like to learn how to manage difficult communication situations with patients.

After: I have gained competence in managing difficult communication situations with patients.

Before: I think I will learn something useful for my later job as a doctor.

After: I have learned something useful for my later job as a doctor.