Figure 2. ELISA titers of sera from volunteers in urban Accra or rural Mampong communities compared with malaria-naïve controls from Denmark.

Horizontal bars represent geometric mean titers and filled circles represent individual titers. P values are the differences in activity for each antigen between urban and rural Ghana populations; the only significant difference was for MSP3.