The graphs show the proportion with patent parasitaemia (left) and episodes per person-year (right) against age in years. The proportion with patent parasitaemia increases with age, peaking around age 50, and then decreases. The episodes per person-year also increase with age, peaking around age 30, and then decrease.