Study participant eligibility assessment, enrollment, group allocation and analysis. Subjects recruited for the study were assessed and those eligible were enrolled. Participants were randomized into L-carnitine and control groups. Patients were blinded from groups. Statistical analysis was performed on data from all subjects completing the study.