A syringe is connected to an HPLC column via a tee. The column leads to an ESI interface, which is connected to a mass detector.

B and C show retention time profiles with the vertical axis representing rel. MS intensity (AU). The graph in B shows a peak at around 4.5 minutes, while the graph in C shows two peaks at around 12.5 and 13.5 minutes.