Figure 1: Signal flow of mud pulse telemetry. The down-hole part shows the data measured by the sensors are processed in the computing module and converted into mud pressure pulses. The surface part shows the mud pressure pulses are detected by the pressure sensor, and the signal is transmitted to the computer and processed there to get the actual values.