The figure shows the levels of TGF-β1 and IL-10 in different experimental groups. The x-axis represents different treatment conditions, and the y-axis represents the concentration in pg/ml. Various symbols indicate statistical significance between groups.