The graph shows the net regulation of various biological processes. The x-axis represents different biological processes, including Response to stimulus, Transport, Cell differentiation, Metabolism, Cell communication, Cell motility, and Development. The y-axis represents the net regulation, ranging from -4 to 10. The graph indicates that Metabolism has the highest net regulation, followed by Cell communication and Cell motility. The other processes have lower net regulation values.