An initial set of key genes of interest is chosen and a network structure inferred e.g. Circadian clock regulated

To this model a number of genes may be added. Genes are added separately…

Either all genes, or a selection

The structure learning algorithm is applied to each set of genes, finding the GRN which is most likely to have generated the data

The best network structure is chosen, and the gene is added to the model