The graph illustrates the relationship between the number of sub-networks and the cluster index value. The optimum number of sub-networks is indicated by the arrow, where the increase in the cluster index value stabilizes, suggesting a balance between sub-networks and overall performance. The data points for 1 to 6 sub-networks show a trend where the cluster index value decreases as the number of sub-networks increases beyond the optimum point.