Stainless steel needles are aligned next to each other and are glued onto the polyurethane block. The cement mold is then placed above the wires.

After the cast is dried it is removed from the cement mold and sintered.

HAp slurry is poured into the cement mold and it is left to harden.