Cork Boiling Wastewater (CBW) is an industrial effluent that can be valorized through anaerobic digestion. This process converts CBW into valuable biomolecules such as phenol compounds, benzoic acids, enzymes, biogas/methane, and other products.