Figure 1: BMS is breast milk substitute, EBF is exclusive breast feeding, MXD is mixed feeding. 18% of the total data and the data for EBF infected at birth were unavailable. Kruskal Wallis test on one way ANOVA showed no statistically significant difference amongst the three modes of feeding in terms of the average infant weights (p-value>0.05).