The graph shows the amount consumed (number/pieces) under different aroma conditions: Control, Citrus, and Vanilla. The y-axis represents the amount consumed, while the x-axis represents the aroma condition. The data suggests a significant difference in consumption between the conditions, with the Citrus condition showing the highest amount consumed and the Vanilla condition showing the second-highest amount consumed. The control condition shows a lower amount consumed compared to the other two conditions.