This graph shows the proportion of systematic reviews published over time from the first search to acceptance and to publication. The x-axis represents the time in months from the first search to publication, while the y-axis represents the proportion of systematic reviews published. The graph includes two distinct curves, indicating different timeframes for acceptance and publication.