Non-basal clusters were less stable when the non-proliferative embryonic mammary gene signature was used to cluster the UNC337 dataset.
No significant difference between the two major clusters is observed in the NKI295 dataset, when the non-proliferative embryonic mammary gene signature was used to cluster them.