Title: Citation searching: a systematic review case study of multiple risk behaviour interventions

Reviewer's report:

Thank you for the opportunity to re-read this manuscript. The authors have done a good job with the revision, and I see no further issues to be addressed. The one thought I have is that the contribution of supplemental techniques, such as checking reference lists, citation searching, and related article searching, is likely inverse to the skill of the searchers. Testing that hypothesis would be a tricky study to do!
