Reviewer's report

Title: Primary repair of colon injuries: a clinical study of nonselective approach

Version: 1 Date: 21 December 2009

Reviewer: Andrew Hill

Reviewer's report:

I enjoyed reading this paper but it suffers very severely from poor English and numerous spelling mistakes. This paper must be rewritten with the help of a native English speaker prior to it being taken any further. If this is done I would be happy to reread the manuscript and comment on it further.

In my opinion the paper seems to be well conceived and is of relevance to the surgical community.

Level of interest: An article whose findings are important to those with closely related research interests

Quality of written English: Not suitable for publication unless extensively edited

Statistical review: No, the manuscript does not need to be seen by a statistician.
