Reviewer's report:

Problem posed by the Authors is well defined, the methods are appropriate, and the manuscript adheres to the current standards for reporting and data deposition.

The title and abstract accurately conveys what has been found by the authors. The discussion and conclusions are adequately supported by the data, and limitations of the work are clearly stated.

The data do not need to be seen by a statistician, the language is acceptable.

Findings of these data are important to those with closely related research interests.

Summing up, I am of the opinion that this is a very good article with significant clinical implications, concerning the treatment of patients with recurrent malignant gliomas.

I propose to accept this paper without revision.
