Title: Arthrogryposis in infancy, multidisciplinary approach. Case report.

Version: 8 Date: 24 June 2013

Reviewer: Esko Wiltshire

Reviewer's report:

The manuscript has improved significantly with the additional information, which has addressed the previous concerns. There is still significant attention required to English language use. The authors should be careful to proof read the manuscript and especially to check abbreviations.....for example ACM is used in several places (I presume this should be AMC (for arthrogryposis multiplex congenita)

Level of interest: An article whose findings are important to those with closely related research interests

Quality of written English: Needs some language corrections before being published

Statistical review: No, the manuscript does not need to be seen by a statistician.
