Title: Psychiatric Disorders of Patients Seeking Obesity Treatment

Version: 3 Date: 23 August 2012

Reviewer’s report:

This is an interesting, clearly written paper evaluating the psychopathological features of a large Chinese sample of obese subjects seeking for treatment. Two are the limitations of this manuscript:

1) Introduction and discussion sections are too long, redundant in some parts and should be substantially abridged.

2) A careful English mother tongue writer should carefully revised the manuscript before publication.

This is a good contribution in the field.

Level of interest: An article whose findings are important to those with closely related research interests

Quality of written English: Needs some language corrections before being published

Statistical review: No, the manuscript does not need to be seen by a statistician.
