Title: Biological and other health related correlates of the long-term life dissatisfaction burden

Version: 3 Date: 9 May 2013

Reviewer: Nicolas Rohleder

Reviewer's report:

The authors have now re-analyzed their data as suggested, treating life dissatisfaction as a continuous variable. These new analyses confirm the previous results.

I am a bit taken aback by the fact that instead of using and reporting their new and improved methods, and better results as a MAIN outcome, they have taken a very easy-way-out approach and just added language stating that using life dissatisfaction as a continuous variable works as well.

I will leave it to the editors to decide whether to ask the authors for another revision. I would probably do that.
