Title: The relationship between facial skeletal class and expert-rated interpersonal skill: an epidemiological survey on young Italian adults

Version: 3 Date: 10 July 2006

Reviewer's report:

General
In this resubmission, the authors have responded appropriately to each of the major compulsory revisions that I suggested. The new figures 1 and 2 are particularly helpful for the reader. As requested, additional text has appropriately expanded e.g. for the description of the administration of the MMPI, possible biases in the data (especially with respect to the female subjects), discussion of how to design followup studies, and literature review. The new title is also more descriptive of the study.

Major Compulsory Revisions (that the author must respond to before a decision on publication can be reached)

Some language issues should be reviewed, in particular the authors use the word "sensible" when it appears that they mean "sensitive".

Minor Essential Revisions (such as missing labels on figures, or the wrong use of a term, which the author can be trusted to correct)

Discretionary Revisions (which the author can choose to ignore)

What next?: Accept after minor essential revisions

Level of interest: An article whose findings are important to those with closely related research interests

Quality of written English: Needs some language corrections before being published

Statistical review: No
