Title: Young pregnant women's views on the acceptability of screening for chlamydia as part of routine antenatal care

Version: 2 Date: 30 July 2010

Reviewer: margaret reid

Reviewer's report:

The authors have responded to the revisions in some detail and appropriately. In particular, they have expanded the methodology section, explaining their aim and approach [although some may query the sample size for a qualitative study and resulting lack of depth]. Throughout the paper, the authors have added in further details which makes the paper stronger and more valid and the research adds to our understanding of the field.
