This is my second review of the above manuscript.

The authors addressed well all reviewers’ comments. The statistical analysis is clear and Table 2 improved and now in line with common presentations of multivariate logistic analyses. The findings of this paper are interesting and will be relevant to people from the field.

I recommend publishing the paper after one small revision of the abstract conclusion.

I find the conclusion in the ABSTRACT repeating of the results section.

Instead I suggest that the authors will highlight the difference between Twain and Western societies.

For example:

“LTPA in Southern city of Taiwan showed some unique associations with age, SES and media consumption that are not commonly reported in the Western World and similar associations with regards to psychosocial correlates of LTPA participation. Further studies from developing countries are warranted to highlight culture-specific differences in physical activity participation."
