Title: Barriers to antiretroviral therapy adherence in rural Mozambique

Version: 2 Date: 22 July 2011

Reviewer’s report:

While the point by point response from the authors responds to my concern about the representativeness (or lack of) of the community group members, I do not see in the revised manuscript reference to this. The explanation in the cover letter is reasonable as to why the responses of the community groups are likely relevant to people with HIV, but this is not described in the article as revised (as far as I can see), and in addition, I think even with this information, the fact that these are not necessarily PLHIV should be acknowledged in the limitations section.

I think with response to this issue in the text the article can be published.
