Title: With good intentions: complexity in unsolicited informal support for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. A qualitative study.

Reviewer’s report:

Interesting article. Paper would benefit from further discussion of the role of formal carer service provision, and why this service is not accessed/available to this community, and the challenges that this presents. i.e. There is a danger of the 'they look after their own' stereotype, and therefore commissioners/service providers can sometimes neglect such communities.
