Title: The oral health of heroin drug users: case study in Bosnia and Herzegovina

Version: 3 Date: 7 September 2013

Reviewer: Albert Reece

Reviewer’s report:

The paper seems sound now.
All the previously suggested corrections have been made.
The implications of this work are significant, as poor dental health is a marker of overall health, and an important source of antigenic and immune stimulation, exacerbating the immune stimulation which occurs from illicit drugs themselves. As it occurs on a major highway for illicit drugs into Europe, these results are of particular interest.
The statistics seems thoroughly thought out, and well presented.
It is fit to be published.
