Reviewer's report:

A qualitative exploration of Malaysians cancer patients' perceptions towards cancer screening

I have read the above revised manuscript and it would appear that the authors have responded to the comments set out. The paper now reads much better.

I have only one major compulsory revision - the authors have removed any discussion of the limitations of the study. I feel that consideration should be given to the possible limitations of the study and a section should be added addressing these. There are no further major compulsory, minor essential or discretionary changes required.

Level of interest: An article whose findings are important to those with closely related research interests
