Reviewer's report:

I think the author's did a good job of addressing the major concerns. I recommend accepting the paper. My only question is still why the authors could not calculate some sort of response rate. I think may readers will be put off by the fact that the author's don't clarify why their sampling method made it impossible to calculate the response rate.

Also there are some typos in the document so the authors should have someone read through it very carefully before finalizing it. BMC does not typically have the resources to do heavy copy-editing.
