Reviewer's report

Title: What makes people decide who to turn to when faced with a mental health problem? Results from a French survey

Version: 2 Date: 24 April 2007

Reviewer: David L Vogel

Reviewer's report:

This is the second time I have reviewed this study. The study examined the rates at which participants (N = 412) would use different treatment options and examined several determinants of these decisions. This study continues to focuses on an important topic that would be of interest to mental health professionals. The manuscript is generally well-written and provides some useful information about help-seeking intentions in a French sample. The results might be clearer to the reader if some additional information about the regression results (i.e., b, SE b, X2) were reported in Tables 2 and 3.

What next?: Accept after minor essential revisions

Level of interest: An article whose findings are important to those with closely related research interests

Quality of written English: Acceptable

Statistical review: No, the manuscript does not need to be seen by a statistician.

Declaration of competing interests:

I declare that I have no competing interests