Reviewer’s report:

Thank you for the corrections. The authors have addressed the points that I raised in my review. Also, with respect to the low response rate, I think that this has been appropriately identified as a study limitation and the conclusions of the article are valid, even given this problem. The authors do not draw inferences beyond their data and are careful to note potential problems. I think this paper will be of interest to those of us in the field who are developing and implementing anti-stigma programs despite its limitations.
