I have two minor suggestions for the end of the Backgrounds section:

After the sentence on costs I suggest you briefly refer to the previous systematic review on this topic (reference no 6).

I also suggest you extend the final sentence in the Background section:

We restricted the population for our systematic review to “persons with psychological problems or pain” because these are the most common indications for BFR [or similar; this was your explanation in your response to a question in my first review].

Otherwise I think the manuscript is now ready for publication.
