Title: Comparative study of paediatric prescription drug utilization between the Spanish and immigrant population

Version: 5 Date: 5 November 2009

Discretionary Revisions
1. By convention, generic drug names such as methylphenidate are not capitalized (unless they appear as the first word in a sentence). Trade names or brand names of drugs (such as Ritalin) are capitalized. I suggest that in the text, generic drug names should be changed to lower case letters.

2. I suggest changing the wording in the second to the last paragraph of the Discussion from "endorse the influence of this factor" to "support this hypothesis."
