Title: E-learning in Medical Education in Resource Constrained LMIC Countries

Version: 1 Date: 28 December 2012

Reviewer: Kim Webber

Reviewer’s report:

This paper provides a useful summary of the use and challenges around electronic education in low and middle income countries. It will be of particular use to those countries who are commencing such activities and will ensure that they are aware of other country experiences and how to prepare effectively for implementation.

I applaud the focus on advising on strategies for implementation, thereby making the paper a pragmatic and useful contribution to scaling up education programs.

Discretionary Revisions

Background, paragraph 3. The paper says it looks at medical education but it is actually broader than medical so would consider broadening to health education.
