Title: What interventions do rural doctors think will increase recruitment in rural areas: A survey of 2778 health workers in Beijing

Version: 3 Date: 25 June 2013

Reviewer: Christine Hancock

Reviewer's report:

This manuscript is substantially improved from its first version. It still has minor grammatical errors, including in the abstract. It should have a final review by an editor who speaks English as a first language. Other than that, it seems appropriate for publication at this point; the length is quite extensive, but if the journal is willing to publish something this long, it has important and valid content.

Level of interest: An article of importance in its field

Quality of written English: Needs some language corrections before being published

Statistical review: No, the manuscript does not need to be seen by a statistician.
